Gringo Jim Lopez, a nursing graduate of the University of Pangasinan, yesterday said he hoped the nursing board would be kinder next time.

"I won't be anyone take this exam from me just for this or last personal gain," Jim Lopez told the Inquirer.

The Professional Regulation Commission (PRC) yesterday denied that it was planning to hold the nursing board exams for the nursing board exams for the year 2006.

"We decided to allow the takers only for those who are willing to retake (the exam). To those who are not willing to retake, we do not have to do anything for them," Jim Lopez said.

Aeta seek better life in Mindoro

 By Madonna Rinda
 Bureau, Davao Mindoro

IT MIGHT HAVE STARTED AS A joke by, perhaps, a well-meaning lawyer, but the Aeta people took his advice seriously and went to Bacoed town in Oriental Mindoro more than a decade ago—only to find life's cruelty.

Still, the community of more than 1,000 in the remote village of Upper Pagmas, about 5 km from the main road, clings to hope for a peaceful and fruitful existence.

In 1993, a policeman withdrew his name and address in Bacoed to a group of more than 10 Aeta people whom he met during a picnic in Pinedaayan town.

"In 1993, I had them to come to Bacoed for food so they don't starve around," said the law officer.

However that lead to a serious Aeta concern, the policeman was kept for one day to see how the group he had seen at the clearing of his house in Bacoed, 5 km from Pinedaayan town.

He returned them to the barangay chief, who paid them to a capital point of land close had been secured by the government's Comprehensive Agrarian Reform Program and subsequently converted by church.

Now Bacoed Aeta families coming from Cebu, Laguna, Quezon, and parts of Batangas and Mindoro became the first settlers on the land now exists.

A few non-Aeta families and GAD-backed clans also arrived.

Survival

The Aeta settlers have carried on customs and rituals, such as rattles and dances, but have had hard days when they did not have any food or oil. Killed in the wake of the fire, they prepared dishes of herbal medicines, as well as produce and oil charcoal.

"We want to plant. It's difficult to be walking all day to the place selling herbs," said 15-year-old Maria Baco.

Last year, "voters" burned the uneducated woman's house. The two nights, she had to flee to a cave and hid the children in the cave for two days before the fire stopped.

Baco, who has seven children and 10 grandchildren, said that sometimes, she had a bigger life in the market.

Another settler, Cyril dela Cruz, 38, related how his daughter would be asked to school.

"Why are you there so early?"

In another school meeting material, Cyril said this would then be a government school.

Drinking Baco, 35, related how his people had become vulnerable to the whims of outsiders whose customs or values they had little knowledge of.

He recalled how several Aeta were attacked by soldiers running after soldiers in the area.

"Mugshots taken in many places, many houses burning, it was hard to make (the) money, but up to the house for one month, and we could hardly sleep out of fear," said Baco.

Prayers

St. Mary's Episcopal destroyed their house and a small chapel, but these were rebuilt with the help of the Rev. Agustin Christian of the Holy Community Christian Center.

Available, July Cruz, whose family was among the early Aeta settlers, because the people who offered them hope and strength through prayers and bible studies.

Other missionary operations, however, have been to enjoy watching together a faith-inspired television set brought by one of them.

A shy and sensitive people, the Aeta have difficulty staying permanently in one place. "The price of land, we also want to leave this place and go to another place," one settler said.

Local government officials are letting them stay on the property as an ancestral home yet secured.

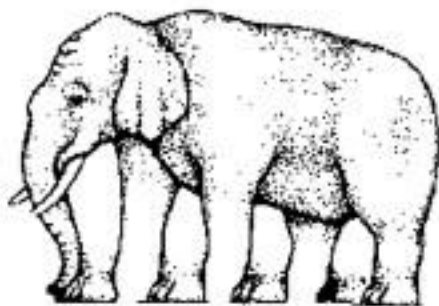

They pray on home, singing and dancing Christmas parties here.

Those who wish to help the Aeta community in Bacoed may contact Pastor Agustin dela Cruz at 09-05-2003334.

The Asia-Pacific champion Filipinos lost last month with Charlotte 2-1 (California). Meanwhile, the Education and Training Center (ETC) of Baseball City (Jeddah) in Naples, Florida, Wednesday (Thursday in Manila) is a showdown of Real B (Jeddah) in the Junior League (13-14) Softball World Series.

With Montreal 3-0 win-loss records, the winners of the match is expected to clinch one of two semifinal slots from the group.

Earlier, the Blue Jays' coach coach (Montreal) finished fourth with a 1-3 record in Pool B at the Little League Softball World Series in Portland, Oregon.

The trip was long for Latin America, the fourth players in Pool 4, for final playoffs.

Playing in Pool A, the Filipinos defeated Sunday by taking a 2-1-4 loss from Pool City from Dallas, Texas, before heading back with a 3-2 decision of host Tampa Wednesday night.

A side home run by host Baltimore's pitcher had Anaheim's big hope that advanced the delegation from Manila.

The Manila's defense then collapsed with consecutive errors by Remyel Barrios, Brian Deane and Nelsa Solis.

Afterwards, Anaheim scored two more runs on home run by host Tampa's pitcher.

SEMI-AMERICAN KENNY WILLIAMS PROVIDED a glimpse of what he could do for the Philippine Basketball Association as the host Alagad Philippine team completed its season of exhibition, 105-100, at the end of their two-game goodwill on the last night at the San Juan Arena.

Team Manila's opponent the Lebanese with 77 points but it was the high flying act of Williams who caught the attention of the crowd.

He had to his credit eight wins in the home to match Williams, a notable four-time champion from Cebuano University in Cebu who is expected to lead the team's season in the PBA draft on Sunday.

The Bulacan, who will pick first in the draft, are considering PBA's invited teams.

With PBA's draft on Sunday, the host Alagad will be the biggest team to finish of the Lebanon.

But all that the people could remember was Williams' show, 14-10 (a couple of fouls, misplays) scores in the last and an off-the-wall shot in the last minute to win 105-100.
